Move For Hunger Wins $20,000 Grant

Last month, Chase Bank held a competition for hundreds of thousands of non-profit organizations across America called Chase Community Giving. The stakes were high. In total, Chase awarded over $5 million dollars to just 200 non-profit organizations.

Charities asked their supporters to vote for them on Facebook for a chance to win the grant. The top 200 charities earning the most votes won grants. After a ton of Facebooking, emailing, handshaking, and voter pizza partying, I'm happy to announce that Move For Hunger has won a $20,000 grant to continue its mission of hunger relief.

These funds will allow Move For Hunger to bring a greater awareness to our cause, while providing relief to even more of America's hungry. In just one year, Move For Hunger has grown to work with over 90 moving companies in 30 states. Together, we have collected nearly 40,000 pounds of food for local food banks – and we're just getting started!

Thank you to everyone who voted for Move For Hunger! Your support and enthusiasm has made a huge impact, and we are so thankful for your help. To learn more about Move For Hunger, or to make an online donation to our cause, please visit www.MoveForHunger.org.
